Sunny South.

The stone school house at Sunny South was the scene of a gay and festive gathering on Friday evening last, when a concert, supper and dance were given under the auspices of the school, for the purpose of raising funds for a library. The concert programme, consisting of songs and recitations by the pupils, several well rendered recitations by Mr. Jerrold, of Sunny South, a few graphophone selections by Mr. Law, of Qu'Appelle, several banjo and guitar solos and duetts by two gentlemen from Indian Head, and speeches by the trustees and teachers of the school, past and present. Mr. L. A. Ferguson, an ex-teacher of the school, filled the chair with satisfaction to all. The supper was furnished by the ladies of the district and was enjoyed by the many present. The floor was then cleared and dancing indulged in till 3 o'clock. The trustees and teachers take this opportunity of thanking those who so ably assisted in contributing to the success of the entertainment.

MARRIAGES.

LESLIE—JOHNSTON. On the 2nd inst. by Rev A. Matheson, George Leslie to Bessie Johnston, both of Hednesford.

Edgeley Echoes.

The C. E. rally, which was to have taken place on Tuesday evening, 8th inst., was postponed, partly on account of the weather and poor roads, and also for the reason that some of the best workers are quite unwell. Doubtless it will occur in the near future when things are more favorable than at present.

We are sorry to state that Mrs. Jos. Fessant is quite ill just now but hope she may speedily recover.

Many of the settlers of our district intend to take advantage of the cheap excursions this winter and visit friends in Ontario. We bespeak for them a very pleasant time, and hope they will not forget those left behind who have to brave the fierce blizzards and cold weather of our western Territories.

Many of the farmers are hauling wheat to market, but the tendency seems to be to hold the grain till the price advances.

Mr. W. F. Mattews is now driving a team of fine horses which he bought in Qu'Appelle lately.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Anderson, of "Vancouver," intend living among us this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Howden recently returned from their trip to Weyburn, and report things prosperous in that settlement.

Our sympathy is tendered Mr. F. F. Goodwin and family, most of whom are quite ill and are under the doctor's care. We hope to hear that all are improving.

The Methodist church, which has been closed several months undergoing much needed repairs, will be opened next Sunday. The pastor has secured the services of the Rev. Burrows, B.A., of Indian Head, who will preach during the afternoon at 3 p.m. After the service a thankoffering will be taken, and all who have subscribed are particularly requested to have the same on hand, as $300 is needed at once to pay pressing demands. The thanks of the community is due the football club who so generously have allowed their hall to be used for church service most of the summer and autumn.

Mr. Jos. Fessant is now having erected one of the finest stables that we have had the pleasure of seeing for some time. The bottom is of stone, while the upper part is very large and is to be used as a feed room. Mr. J. B. Robinson is the contractor and is rushing the work along with his usual activity in order to finish the job before the extremely cold weather sets in. Mr. Fessant is certainly to be congratulated upon his enterprise, thus showing that the days of mud and sod stables are soon to pass away.

CHAPTER VIII.

"Now don't interrupt me with your laughing and remarks, Mr. Lancaster, or you will make me so confused that I shall not be able to describe to you all that happened. In that case, you would lose a great deal—that is, if you enjoy a joke," said Tekla.

"You could not help laughing heartily while I was telling you that new funny story the last time I was here," he ventured.

"Yes," she replied. "I've had to laugh every time I remember that new (?) story. But to my own narrative: I was sitting here all by my lonesome, when the door opened and an elderly female entered. I was sorry she came in just then, for I was waiting for the parrot to dry himself off in the sun after his noon bath before putting him back in his cage—he's so awfully mischievous, you know.

"'Are you the young woman who takes photographs?' she asked, staring at me.

"'Yes, ma'am,' I replied. 'I'm not Miss Carr; she employs my mother and me, also a young gentleman assistant to help her, she has so much business. The rest of them are out. I assure you I can do quite as well. I've had a great deal of practice, and can take pictures with the best of 'em, even though I do look young.'

"'You needn't throw that up in my face about looking young, you impertinent creature!' snapped the woman, sharply.

"I must have looked at her rather astonished, but I only said, as meekly as I could:—

"'Shall I put your name down for a sitting, Mrs—?'

"I thought she'd bring down her umbrella she carried over my hapless head, as she cried out, shrilly:—

"'I'm not Mrs.; I'm Miss—Miss Pettybone, of Johnstown Center, Wisconsin. I'm a new woman, I am!'

"'You don't look very new,' I muttered, sotto voce; but, low as I had uttered it, that mischievous parrot had heard it, and judge of my consternation when Poll cried out from behind her: 'Ha! ha! ha! You don't look very new.

"'You horrid girl!' cried the irate visitor. 'I shall report you to your superior. I never met such a sassy miss before!'

"I was too convulsed with laughter to explain that it was poor Polly, who had hidden herself under a chair in the far corner, who had been so impolite, and not I.

"'Yes, I want my picture took. Say,' she added, in a lower key, 'make me look as slick as you can. There's a young widdy in Johnstown Center who had her picter took in the city, and the critur didn't look over sixteen in it. That's the kind of a pictur I want.'

"'Would you like to step into the dressing-room and arrange your toilet?' I asked.

"'Twilight' fiddlesticks,' she ejaculated, sharply. 'I want to stand by a fence under a tree, just as the widdy did, with the sun shinin' for all he is worth. I heerd you can't take a pictur good when thar's no sun. You see, young woman, I do know something, even if I am from Johnstown Center.'

"'Sometimes a little primping up adds to a lady's appearance,' I suggested, adding, by way of explaining my words: 'Makes them look more youthful you know.'

"I had turned my back a moment as I ceased speaking, and in that unfortunate moment Poll sung out:—

"'Youthful! Ha! ha! ha! Rot, rot! I'd hate to hang since you were fifty, you giddy old dear!'

"'You insulting minx!' screamed the old lady. 'What did you say? I'll have you arrested. I'll teach you to make fun of a respectable young woman like me to my face!'

"My quick wit came to my rescue; but I am sure my eyes shot fire as I looked at guilty Poll poking her head out from the furthest corner as I answered in my sweetest tones:—

"'Youthful romance lurks in your gaze. No doubt full fifty suitors hang upon your girlish smiles, which are to them so dear.'

"'Ah!' said the elderly maid, much mollified 'you are quite right, miss. You are beholding the belle of Johnstown Center; you are, indeed.'

"I was in great terror lest Polly should speak; but, much to my relief, she made no comment, though I felt sure she was intent on mischief, and would bear strict watching; but in the course of the next few minutes I was so busy arranging Miss Pettybone before the camera, and wondering if I dare tell her that her false hair wasn't on straight, that I forgot mischievous Polly, and that, alas! was the cause of my undoing. I commenced whistling softly to myself. Now don't comment about the whistling girl, and all that. I'm trying to break myself of the habit, but sometimes I forget. Well, in this instance I was brought to a rude awakening. I was whistling the first two bars of the old song:—

"'Our two old cows have two white calves,
And they're stuffed with hay instead of clover,' etc.

"Now, it happened that Tim has been trying to teach Poll that song, but the rascally bird would never learn but a portion of it.

"'Hadn't you better shet to that door?' snapped Miss Pettybone, after she had settled herself at last, skirts, hoop and all, in her seat. 'There's a young man passing up and down the hall outside, a-staring, with a grin on his face as he looks in. The impertinence! Jest slam the door to in his face.'

"I turned about to do her bidding, still whistling thoughtlessly. I noticed Poll had crept out from her corner and had taken refuge under our odd visitor's chair, and was eying me askance, her head on one side. The next instant I was fairly paralyzed by hearing Poll sing out in a shrill, ear-splitting voice:—

"'Two white calves, and they're stuffed with hay,'

"And at that luckless moment my poor Tim, who had just returned from luncheon, passed the door and looked in.

"If you had been there you would have thought a Western cyclone had struck the place by the scene that followed. Our ancient patron was on her feet like a flash, and with one flying leap had reached the door, disappearing through it, hoops, skirts, and hair a-flying, yelling at the top of her voice:—

"'They ain't stuffed with hay; they're all my own, you miserable—'

"There was a yell of terror from luckless Tim, and the sound of a dreadful scuffle from the top of the stairs down to the street, and by that time half of the police force were on hand, dragging my poor Tim and the belligerent female to the station-house. I had to hurry after them to explain matters and get him out, and when the magistrate learned the whole truth of the matter, there was the greatest laugh you ever heard. The policemen fairly screamed. In the excitement, the irate lady from Johnstown Center escaped in the crowd. Tim was discharged. The following card, which we have kept in the papers ever since, explains itself:—

"'The lady who accidentally dropped her upper set of teeth on Tuesday last, may have same returned to her if she will call at No. — Broadway, and pay for this advertisement.'

"The lady has not called, and never will. We fear we are ahead, however, an upper set of teeth, which we will sell second-hand awfully cheap. And we have resolved to banish Poll from the gallery when there are customers about."

Lancaster laughed heartily at this exploit, and also at her ludicrous description of the country brides and grooms, and of one in particular whom every one could see was fully eight years older than her husband.

"She is trying to imitate youth, with her yam-yam, girlie-girlie talk," I said to myself. "He will be good for a nice young wife in five years or so more; for this one will have given out. It is so unsatisfactory being a young man's slave. It will be a mighty losing game for her in the finish, or I'm no prophetess. She will have grave need for pity. And the babies—bless their little hearts—we have wonderful experiences with them," concluded Tekla, laughing. "That reminds me of what happened a few weeks ago. A lady came in to have an extra large and handsome doll photographed. And, oh! how particular she was about that picture. It transpired that she was to send it to a wealthy old bachelor uncle who had promised to make her child his heir if he took a liking to the photograph. It all depended on that. Her child was cross-eyed, and as ugly as its papa. Hence the big doll was brought into requisition. It is needless to add, her child secured the fortune, the uncle was so enraptured with the photo. And then there's the old farmer and his wife who came in one day. They wanted their picture taken close together, declaring they were lovers yet. And then there was the Westerner and his wife—dog, gun, and all—who wanted it taken nat'ral—'jest as they are ter hum.' And last, but by no means least, here's the best picture I ever had of Tim. Don't you think it resembles him?" and the mischievous madcap held up at arm's length the picture of a lass and her lover almost entirely screened by a huge umbrella. "But, dear me, here comes Miss Jessy. It will never do for me to be found loitering here like this when there's so many negatives to be touched up."

Tekla skipped out of the room just as Jessy Carr entered the gallery.

The girl's face brightened perceptibly as she saw who was there.

"Frederick!" she exclaimed, holding out both of her hands to him. "How pleased I am to see you!"

It was pitiful to witness the glad light that leaped into her eyes—those eyes that would have expressed her delight even had her lips not done so.

"Not more so than I am to see you," he remarked, clasping her hands closely and leading her to a seat and taking one beside her.

"How long have you been in the city?" she inquired, anxiously. "I—I was thinking about you, and—and worrying a little because I had not heard from you."

"I just landed at the Grand Central Depot an hour since," he replied, nonchalantly. "I was a little tired, coming straight through from away out West. But as I was anxious to see you, I hurried down as soon as I had snatched a little luncheon. Now about not hearing from me. You know the time of a traveling salesman is not his own, my dear. It's sell goods from morning until night, with barely time to catch the train from one town to the other, sleeping and eating on the train. You will admit that it is rather a difficult matter to sit down to compose a letter to a sweet girl."

"You are working too hard," said Jessy Carr, sympathetically. "But you do not look tired out. Why, you are looking extremely well, I think."

"You view me with love's eyes," he replied, gallantly; adding, with a low bow, and a pressure of the hand which he still retained: "No matter how tired I might be, your presence would be such elixir to me that the weariness would fall from me. It is so in this instance, believe me."

"I—I am a little relieved to learn that you have just come to town, for I heard something the other day that troubled me a little."

He did not question her as to what it was, for he felt sure that woman-like, she could not keep from telling it. And he was quite right, for, after a moment's pause, she went on, thoughtfully:—

"Some one said you were seen walking down Broadway a few days ago with a young and very beautiful lady. If not you, it was some one who strikingly resembled you. I knew it could not be you, for you were not in town."

"You were quite right in your conclusion, my dear," he replied, lightly. "It was not me, rest assured of that. There is but one young and beautiful lady who has ever had any interest for me, and that is the one whom I fell in love with in the court-room, secured an introduction to, and have been her devoted adorer ever since."

"Frederick," said the girl, slowly, "will you answer me one question?"

"As many as you like," he answered, carelessly.

"Will you tell me the reason why you do not wish it known that we are engaged? and—and why you never take me out anywhere when you come to town? and last, but not least, why do you not write to me during the long weeks you are away?"

"I will begin at the last question and go forward," he said, with a forced laugh. "I have already explained to you

HE FIT WITH GRANT.

At Least He Said He Did, but Soon Changed His Mind.

"Yes, sir, gentlemen, I fit with Grant an with Sherman," said old Sam Blow, the most gaseous, the most conscienceless and the brassiest of all the shiftless set of daily loungers around Hi Pegram's store at the crossroads.

"Yes, sir," reiterated old Sam, "I'se an Grant we fit side by side at Harper's Ferry an at Bull Run, an at Stone River. Why, gentlemen, at Bull Run we had our hosses shot out from under us, me an Grant did, but we grabbed our guns an tore along on foot, an Grant says to me, says he: 'Give it to 'em, Sam! Give 'em jesse!' An it was the same way at Harper's Ferry, me an Grant we fit side by side"—

"Aw, give us a rest," interrupted old Joe Todd. "Grant never fit at none o' them battles. He fit at Chickamauga and"—

"I meant Chickamauga."

"And at Appomattox."

"Didn't I say Appomattox?"

"No, you never. You said Bull Run."

"Well, I meant Appomattox. I reckon my tongue slipped."

"And Grant fit at Shiloh."

"Didn't I say Shiloh?"

"No, you didn't. You said Stone River."

"Did I? Well, Shiloh an Stone both begin with an 'S,' an that's how I made that mistake. I meant Shiloh, an it was here that me an Grant routed a hull rigiment by our two selves, an Grant he says to me, says he"—

"Lookee here, Sam Blow," broke in Joe Todd again, "do you know when the battle of Shiloh was fit?"

"I ain't very good on dates, but I think it was in the fall of 1864."

"Like thunder it was! It was on the 6th of February, 1862."

"So it was, come to think of it, so it was."

"Yes, an I was married to my second wife 600 miles from Shiloh that very day, an you an Jane Linnus, she that is now Jane Hawkins, stood up with us, an it was the year after that that you got drafted, an they could a-heard you bawl a mile because you had to go. What you got to say to that?"

"Well, of course my memory ain't what it was once, an I—I—anyhow i—great Scott! If it ain't after 2 o'clock, an they was a man coming to my house to see me at 2. I got to be off, gentlemen."—New York World.

FOUR MONTHS OF FEAR

Agonizing Voyage of the American Clipper Luzon.

CHASED BY GHOSTLY SPANIARDS.

From Hawaii to New York Around Cape Horn In the Midst of the War. Constant Danger of Capture Works Upon Nerves and Imaginations.

The American clipper ship Luzon, 113 days from Kahului, in the Hawaiian Islands, arrived at New York a few days ago after a voyage of prostrating anxiety. The vessel, sugar laden, had been at sea more than 4½ months, had half encircled the globe and had weathered four mighty tempests, with no more serious result than the loss of a little of her canvas. Captain J. G. Park, one of the sturdiest mariners that sail the seas, confessed to the greatest feeling of relief on reaching port in safety. It was not wind and weather that bothered the captain and crew of the Luzon during the long voyage. It was the possibility that the vessel and all on board might be taken captive by some "sneaking Spanish privateer," as the skipper put it. It was this that made the long trip one of the most intense anxiety to all aboard the clipper, for, while the Luzon was battling with storms the United States had begun and finished a victorious war with Spain.

The Luzon, a vessel of 1,339 tons and manned by a crew of 22, left Kahului, the port of the island of Maui, on the morning of April 30 last. War was actually in progress then, and the news of it penetrated even to China, but it had not reached Hawaii. Hence Captain Park's misgivings when the clipper left port.

"It was the uncertainty that made the trip bothersome," said Captain Park. "I made up my mind, though, that we should not be caught napping, and I had lookouts posted to watch for the least sign of a sail from the moment we left Kahului. For the first 50 days we had light winds and exasperating calms, and we reached latitude 40 degrees south before we had any kind of a decent wind.

"When we reached the south Atlantic, I began to look for Spaniards in earnest. All this time I was in doubt as to whether any war existed, but I took no chances. Every morning a man was sent to the masthead to scan the ocean for signs of Spaniards, but off Platte we ran into one of those 'pamperos,' as they call the sudden storms, and for 24 hours we lay hove to under reefed lower topsail.

"It was not until Aug. 4 that I heard of the war. Then we spoke the German bark Thalia, which signaled, 'War between the United States and Spain.' It gave us a sort of shock to learn that what we expected was really so, but when I looked at the matter it was clear that there was but one thing to do—keep on for New York.

"We caught the northeast trades in latitude 12 degrees north, and we were bowling along under full sail and heading about nor'-nor'west on Aug. 20 when Douglas, the first mate, came to me and announced solemnly that a Spanish privateer was after us at last. There to the northwest, sure enough, was a big black hulled steamer, with two funnels, cutting through the water at 14 knots and apparently heading directly for us. As she came nearer I saw that her decks were fairly black with men. I was prepared to surrender, for the Luzon wasn't making more than six knots, when the stranger veered more to the eastward and crossed our bows half a mile ahead. She was probably a transport taking home the defeated troops, but she didn't show any flag, and neither did we."

Captain Park is a hard headed and prosaic man. The men before the mast insist that he has kept back the most terrible experiences of the fearful voyage. Jack is prone to see sights which escape the skipper's vision or which that dignitary suppresses for diplomatic reasons. Some of the oldest seamen are willing to swear that the Luzon was several times chased by Spanish cruisers, and after the destruction of Montijo's fleet at Manila the ghost of the ill fated battleships haunted the American clipper. Huge fighting towers and ugly cannons were depicted against the horizon, and during storms the Luzon seemed almost run down by ghostly cruisers. The booming of heavy guns was frequently heard over the boundless waters, and the defenseless sailors of the Luzon suffered untold agonies. They explain their miraculous escape as a part of the good luck which followed the Americans on sea throughout the war.

SENSATIONAL LEAP FOR LIFE

During Jump From a Cliff to an Aerial Car.

A sensational play dealing with life in the coal mines contains a daring leap for life scene. Twenty feet above the stage there is a cliff. On the opposite side of the gap is another cliff, not so high as the first one, and here men are working. Trolley wires connect this cliff with other parts of the mine, and small square cars, such as are used in mines to carry people to its various burrowings, are coming and going.

The heroine is standing at the edge of the opposite precipice. She has come there to prove that her lover is unjustly accused of a crime.

One of the small cars is crossing on the wire. In it is her feminine rival. Just as the car reaches the center of the stage a landslide occurs, and the embankment on which the heroine stands is seen to shake. The woman in the car perceives the danger in which her rival is placed, and at once, forgetting her enmity, she shouts to her to jump for her life.

At this moment the cliff is swept away in the landslide. The heroine jumps and lands in the outstretched hands of her rival. She is hauled into the car and carried on to safety.

The car, with the rescuer in it, is moving all the time, and the heroine has to jump 20 feet to land in the hands of her sister. It is a most dangerous undertaking.

The actress who makes this daily reckless leap describes it as follows: "The woman in the car is strapped to it so that she cannot possibly fall out. As I jump she holds out her hands to catch me, and we clasp each other's wrists with what is known as the 'sure grip.' From the time I leap off the cliff until I land in the car I am almost unconscious. The only sensation I experience is a desire to reach the outstretched hands. After I have done this and am hauled into the car I naturally feel relieved, but I don't approach my task with any thought of the danger I incur. I try to forget it entirely. If I thought of it for an instant while I stood upon the cliff, the thought would be fatal, and I could not make the leap."

SENSATIONAL LEAP FOR LIFE.

MARMALADES.

A Few General Directions and Some Special Recipes For These Popular Preserves.

From the standpoint of wholesomeness or popularity fruit jams and marmalades differ widely, but as far as making is concerned they are identical. Only currants and berries can be used for jam proper, while marmalade has the entire range of larger fruits from plums to quinces. The substitution of granulated for coffee sugar and the heating of both the sugar and the fruit before they are combined has given both preserves a finer color and flavor. But in spite of this jams—especially currant and raspberry—have lost their old time prestige. Familiarity with the possible results of eating fruit seeds was the "handwriting on the wall" that sealed their doom. On the other hand, marmalades were never so delicious, so varied or so popular as now.

No other preparation of fruit requires such close attention from first to last. Constant and thorough stirring with a wooden ladle to prevent the mass from adhering to the bottom of the kettle will alone insure success. A porcelain lined kettle is better than a granite ware one, because thicker.

Marmalade requires a little longer cooking than jam, because the gelatinous skins and seeds are rejected. The fruit is first cooked until soft. Then mashed through a puree strainer to free the pulp from skins, etc. It is then returned to the fire. The sugar added on the mixture cooked slowly and steadily until it is smooth and a little cooled on a plate is firm and free from water. These general directions preface the following recipes in Good Housekeeping for several kinds of marmalade:

Plum Marmalade.—Wash, weigh and cook the fruit, strain, add three-fourths of a pound of sugar to every pound of fruit and cook 25 minutes.

Pineapple Marmalade.—Pare and dig out the eyes, grate the fruit or chop it very fine. Cook in its own juice and the least water possible until it can be easily pierced with a fork.

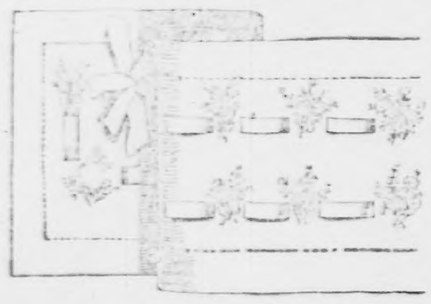
Peach Marmalade.—Pare, stone and weigh the fruit and allow a lemon to every three pounds. Carefully pare the thin yellow rind from the lemons and cook it with the fruit. Put the sugar and pulp over the fire. Boil five or more minutes and carefully remove all the white scum which rises. Add the juice of the lemons and cook ten minutes, stirring constantly. If preferred, the chopped kernels of one-third the pits can be used instead of the lemon peel.

Crab Apple Marmalade.—Wash, quarter and core the fruit, cover the cores with cold water and stew an hour. Strain the liquid over the apples and cook until soft. Strain the pulp, add sugar and cook half an hour; then test and cook longer if necessary.

Quince Marmalade.—Pare, quarter and core the fruit and drop the latter into cold water. Cover the parings and cores with cold water, stew slowly for two hours and then strain through a strong jelly bag, extracting all the gelatinous substance possible. Drain the first on a cloth and cook until tender in the liquid strained from the cores and parings. Mash the fruit through a coarse sieve, add the heated sugar and cook 15 minutes.

Ribbon Work on Linen.

Ribbon is prettily combined with embroidery in the latest work on linen, as shown by a design in the New York



RIBBON RUN IN TABLE SCARF.

Tribune, a part of which is here reproduced. It is for a table scarf or a bureau cover of hemstitched linen or muslin. The ribbon is run in and out of buttonholed slits, leaving a space of muslin between each length of ribbon, whereon is either embroidered a bouquet of flowers or, as is often seen on linen, an applied figure in guipure. The ribbons should match the color of the flower. For instance, with violet ribbon the bouquets should be violets; pink calla for rosebuds or any other pink flower, etc.

The Two Tone Wax Seal.

The two tone seal in wax on an envelope made to match the two tone monogram on the paper is a mystery to any one not in the secret, which the New York Herald explains. For instance, a silver monogram and raised ornamentation on a blue background is easily duplicated in the seal. The background is of wax to match the background of the monogram. When ready to seal the envelope, dip the seal in the oil and wipe it quite dry, except the engraving, where the oil remains. Then dip the oily seal into the silver powder and brush across the seal, leaving no silver except in those same indentations of the engraved monogram. Melt the wax and drop it on to the proper place and seal as usual. The oil will have taken up the silver powder into the monogram and the warm wax taken it out of the monogram, so that all the raised ornamentation is coated over with the silver powder.

Fashion's Echoes.

Fancy buttons promise to be largely used, as does a variety of pearl buttons.

Ostrich tips and feathers abound on the late summer hats.

Black lace over silk furnishes a delightful and fashionable gown.

New coat bodices are modeled on the lines of a man's swallowtail coat.

The passing of the tan shoe will probably be a gradual affair, but the heyday of its glory is over. The becoming and elegant black shoe once more looms up as the proper thing.

One Danger.

He shook his head despondently.

"It begins to look to me," he said, "as if whatever money indemnity we get from the Spaniards would not do us any good."

"Why not?"

"I have an idea that Admiral Cervera will get it all back in damages for libel on account of the pictures of him that have been printed in some of the papers."—Chicago Post.

A New Use.

She—Is this your cyclometer on the mantel?

He—Yes.

She—Why, it only registers 2. Is that all the miles you have ridden in six months?

He—Oh, no. I keep that to tell the number of dollars I have paid in installments.—New York World.

But She Was a Girl.

"If I were a man," she said, "you wouldn't find me here today. I'd be away fighting for my country."

"If you were a man," he replied, "you wouldn't find me here today either. I, too, would be away fighting for my country."

After that all he had to do was gain papa's consent.—Cleveland Leader.

Strategic Measures.

"Your brother-in-law still at your house, Wallace?"

"Yes, but he is beginning to weaken. I have him pushing the lawn mowers every morning and the ice cream freezer every afternoon. I think he will go before I am driven to starting him in on the washing."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Supposition.

"I wonder why Spanish aristocrats have so many names," said the inquisitive citizen.

"I suppose," replied the suspicious person, "it's merely to give people to whom they owe money more trouble in making out the bills."—Washington Star.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

The devil succeeds because he never knows when he's been snubbed.

A woman's first thought when she sees company coming is her canned fruit.

No healthy girl who is over 17 years old has any business believing that love is caused by vibrations.

After a girl has had a quarrel with another she always makes up her mind what she won't say when she meets her and then says it.

The first thing the average woman thinks when she hears that some actress is very sick is to wonder what will become of all the dresses she has.—New York Sun.

Every woman is as old as the neighbors remember she is.

PUT YOUR FINGER ON YOUR PULSE.

If it is Weak or Irregular don't Hesitate to Start the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills at once.

With a strong, steady, regular pulse we may expect vigorous health.

With a weak, irregular, intermittent pulse we can tell at once the vitality is low—that Dizzy and Faint Spells, Smothering and Sinking Sensations and similar conditions are bound to ensue.

By their action in strengthening the heart, toning the nerves and enriching the blood, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills relieve and cure all those distressing conditions just enumerated.

Mrs. B. Croft, residing on Waterloo Street, St. John, N.B., says:

"For some time past I have suffered from pallor, weakness and nervous prostration, I had palpitation and irregular beating of the heart so severe as to cause me great alarm. I was treated by physicians, but got no permanent relief.

"I am glad to say that from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I derived the first real benefit that I ever got from any medicine. My appetite is improved, my entire system toned up, and I can do no less than cheerfully recommend these pills to all requiring a reliable heart and nerve tonic."

Miss Mary E. Hicks, South Bay, Ont., says Laxa-Liver Pills cured her of Sick Headache, from which she had suffered for a year.

DON'T CHIDE THE CHILDREN.

Don't scold the little ones if the bed is wet in the morning. It isn't the child's fault. Weak kidneys need strengthening—that's all. You can't afford to risk delay. Neglect may entail a lifetime of suffering.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Strengthen the Kidneys and Bladder, then all trouble ceases.

Mr. John Carson, employed at M. S. Bradt & Co.'s store, Hamilton, Ont., says:

"My little boy seven years of age has been troubled with his kidneys since birth and could not hold his water. We spent hundreds of dollars doctoring and tried many different remedies, but they were of no avail. One box of Doan's Kidney Pills completely cured him."

The World's Strife.

A life that is to be active ought to find refreshment in the midst of labors—nay, to draw refreshment from them; but this it cannot do unless the man can take up the varied employments of the world with something of a childlike freshness. It is that especial light of heaven described by Wordsworth in his immortal ode, that light

Which lies about us in our infancy,

which attends the youth upon his way, but at length

The man perceives it die away
And fade into the light of common day.

Its radiance still plays about those few who strive earnestly to keep themselves unspotted from the world and are victors in the strife.—Gladstone.

The Millionaire and His Clerk.

Girard, the infidel millionaire of Philadelphia, one Saturday ordered all his clerks to come on the morrow to his wharf and help unload a newly arrived ship. One young man replied, quietly:

"Mr. Girard, I can't work on Sunday."

"You know the rules?"

"Yes, I know. I have a mother to support, but I can't work on Sundays."

"Well, step up to the desk and the cashier will settle with you."

For three weeks the young man could find no work, but one day a banker came to Girard to ask if he could recommend a man for cashier in a bank. This discharged young man was at once named as a suitable person.

"But," said the banker, "you dismissed him."

"Yes, because he would not work on Sundays. A man who would lose his place for conscience's sake would make a trustworthy cashier." And he was appointed.—Pearl of Days.

THANKSGIVING.

A week from to-day is the time set apart by the government of Canada as a day of national Thanksgiving for the blessings of another year.

The duty devolving upon the people this day is one worthy of being carried out by those in a Christian land. Not only because of the in-gathering of another harvest, though this should not be forgotten, but if this were the only object calling for thanksgiving, this part of Canada would necessarily —this year—have to be loudest in their words of praise. It has been a year of exceptional advantages to the agriculturalists, and, through them, to all. But many other things call for thanksgiving as well, and because of them everyone, whether fortune has smiled upon them or not, should join in the services of the day and thus proclaim their faith in the work of a Divine Providence.

It is often celebrated as a mere holiday. We hope that the people of Qu'Appelle and surrounding country will this year, whatever has been their past experience, not only make it a day of thanksgiving in name, but by practice.

A thousand reasons call for us to do so. The fact that we are enjoying so many blessings, and have enjoyed them all our lives, causes us to forget the very things which contribute to our happiness. To understand our advantages, we should consider other times, when Canadians' property and lives were not so safe but were constantly in a state of jeopardy. Men and women, then, would have sacrificed a great deal to have been surrounded by the peace and prosperity we possess. That such cloudy days of adversity will never again darken Canadian skies we all sincerely hope, but because they do not now should be a sufficient reason to call forth the loyal observation of the day set apart for that purpose.

While from the nation to the south of us, and from the nations across the seas, and from nations all over the world, come rumblings of internal strife and rumors of disastrous war, Canada is at peace. May she ever be so, and from our envied position this year of 1898 be truly a thankful people.

A BACK DOWN.

The Indian Head Vidette found out last week that it had not been opposing Mr. Bulyea except for the reason that he was a member of the Haultain-Ross government. It must have been quite an awakening for the Vidette when it lit upon this happy solution of its opposition. It must have felt very glad to at last be able to tell the public why it had opposed Mr. Bulyea. We hope, in the face of such an acknowledgement, the Vidette will be able to hold its head high enough to convince its readers that it is trying to tell the truth, for if any of them should be unfortunate enough—for the Vidette—to pick up the Vidette of either of the two weeks previous they might have some difficulty in reconciling the statements found in these issues, such as, "Mr. Haultain says, 'If you oppose Mr. Bulyea you oppose me, and I am a Conservative.' Well, Mr. Haultain, if you want Conservative support, come out from amongst them;" and yet in last week's issue we are told that the Vidette would have opposed Mr. Haultain just as strongly as they did Mr. Bulyea. Another place on Nov. 2nd it says, "A party fight it is in this constituency," but now we are told it wasn't—it was a Haultain-Ross government fight. We don't like to say anything that would hurt the feelings of the Vidette, and in looking over the issues we asked ourselves the question, Will we, or will we not, refer to it? and argued thus that if we should ever make such a blunder as to forget which side of the fence we were on, we would be indebted to have some one point it out to us, and so we believe in showing the Vidette its error. We are sure they will ever tender us their eternal gratitude for our effort in their behalf for preventing them going so far that they would lose the power of distinguishing between fact and fancy. The Vidette had a perfect right to support Mr. Vicars and to use every effort for his election, but that it should, immediately the fight is ended, turn its back upon the party that liberally employed it and excuse the stand they took by denying it, is nothing to the credit of the editor or editors who control the matter published in its columns.

THE NATIONAL OUTLOOK.

For months rumors of war have floated in the air and the question people are asking is, "What will be the outcome?" More than once it seemed that England was on the verge of war with France, and while few believed that France would be foolish enough to strike swords alone against such a powerful antagonist, the preparations that Britain has been making pointed to such a result. The English papers for some time were requested to publish no war news and vague speculation alone was all that could be gathered till the delivery of Salisbury's speech at the Guild Hall Banquet, a few days ago. That speech was on the aspect of war and the situation, but there is such variety of opinion, in regard to it that there is little use in trying to interpret the meanings of the words it contains. It seems, however, that England's preparations are not alone for protection from France, but underneath it all are many other questions which may at any time bring on war, amongst the nations of Europe and the United States too. England has long had a grievance in the east with Russia; she feels she has a right to a protectorate over Egypt The States is still disputing with Spain over the Phillipines. Spain refuses to give more than was specified in the protocol at the time peace was declared. England urges the States to assert its right now and thus settle the question once and forever. France and Spain already look to each other for assistance against their foes and on beyond for help from another quarter in Europe. The result of war or no war depends upon whether a coalition can be formed amongst the nations of Europe. If that takes place, there is little doubt but England with her vast forces and immense powers and America with her so lately achieved greatness will join hands in a war that must become worldwide, against the united forces of the other nations.

There is not the aversion to war now that there was a few years ago. Men know that England has compromised enough and are agreed that it is better now, to strike a final blow that will leave the world at peace than constantly by diplomacy to be evading a war that sooner or later is inevitable, If war must come before nation will cease plotting against nation, the sooner it comes the better. If war is the only issue that will settle the increasing controversies, the nations are better at war than in a state of unsettled peace, which can only postpone the certain hour of battle.

LOCAL NEWS

A very interesting service was held in St. Andrew's church on Sunday evening last by Mr. C. J. Atkinson, evangelist. The solo selection at the close of the service was highly appreciated. This closes Mr. Atkinson's engagement here. He leaves for Maple Creek this week and will begin services there on the 20th inst.

Owing to indisposition Miss Johnston was unable to preside at the organ on Sunday night in St. Andrew's church. Mr. Williams undertook the duty for her.

Rev. Fitzpatrick has been appointed to this Presbyterian mission. He comes to us with a high reputation as a preacher, and will no doubt meet with a cordial reception. We wish him every success in his work.

The directors of our curling rink are advertising for a caretaker with a view to getting things in shape for the coming winter.

Our lakes are not frozen over as yet.

Business in our stores is brisk.

Messrs. Joyner & Elkington's mill is running full time, and wheat is coming in in large quantities.

Mr. A. Urquhart is going about with a happy smile on his face. They say it is a boy.

A meeting of Court Fort Qu'Appelle 3902, I.O.F., was held in the Orange Hall on Wednesday.

Mr. N. W. M. J. McKenzie, of Touchwood, was in town on Tuesday last.

Rev. Mr. Bassing, Kutawa, passed through town on his way to Indian Head on Tuesday.

The infant son of Mrs. Angus Stewart, Springbrook, who has been very unwell for some time, is, we are glad to say, improving very nicely under the careful treatment of Dr. W. Hall.

Mrs. T. Grigg visited the Fort on Saturday. We were pleased to see her looking so well.

Mr John McDougall, Wide Awake, has moved into his new residence. It is one of the finest farm houses in the west.

Threshing operations in Wide Awake were expected to be finished on Tuesday. The grain is a splendid sample and the crop an abundant one.

Mr. Jas. Ormiston has rented a house in town so that his children may attend school.

We are pleased to hear Mrs. Belanger has reached Vancouver safely. In a letter sent to her sister, Miss Effie Payne, she describes her journey in a most interesting manner.

Geo. Guernsey and Frank Leader returned from their goose shooting trip to Long Lake on Saturday last. They report having a good time, although they did not shoot many geese.

LEBRET.

The east end of the lake as far up as the Industrial School is frozen over and the ice is in fairly good condition for skating. As a result the skaters have been making the best of their opportunities during the past week.

Rev. Father Perrault, of Touchwood, is here on business in connection with the Touchwood Industrial School.

Rev. Father Hugonnard went to Moose Mountain on Wednesday. He expects to be absent some three weeks.

We must confess a deal of disappointment at the result of the recent Northwest elections. While we admit that the government deserved to be sustained, yet we are extremely sorry to see the loyal opposition so painfully small. In our opinion an aggressive opposition is almost as necessary as a ministerial party in parliament, and we feel thot the defeat of such a man as Dr. Brett is little short of a national calamity. Certain it is there is little encouragement for any man to oppose the government with the present non-party system, when government money and government patronage are the baits held out by ministerial candidates to electors for their support.

Moise Robillard, the Half-breed who was tried on a charge of perjury and acquitted and is now under suspended sentence, appears quite confident of winning his case. It is greatly to be regretted that the serious nature of this offence cannot be impressed on the Half-breeds, most of whom have no respect for an oath—some saying it is nothing to kiss a Protestant Bible, or that they only kiss their thumbs or the ribbon round the book. In the recent trial of Moise Robillard it was obvious that the principal witness was endeavoring in every way to shield the accused, denying evidence she had given under oath a short time before. Her reason for doing this is well known, as her only home is with the brother of the accused (who is married to her mother) and she has been threatened with the loss of this home if the accused was convicted through her evidence.

Another case occurred about two months ago when a highly esteemed white man was set upon by two Half-breeds and had to draw his knife in self defence. He brought an action against them, when they swore it was he who assaulted them, and he narrowly escaped being fined, as the two halfbreeds swore to the same story and he had no corroborative evidence. Several other cases could be cited where the evidence was well known to be "crooked" but the magistrates of course had to give their decision on the facts as presented to them. Perjury appears to be a very difficult crime to prove, yet unquestionably one which for the safety of life and property as well as for the interests of public morality should be promptly and severely dealt with.

A SURE CATARRH CURE.

No matter what your experience has been with so-called catarrh "remedies," your ultimate, complete recovery can surely and positively be effected. Don't suffer any longer. Don't trifle with a distressing and dangerous disease when a sure cure is within your grasp. Thousands of sufferers whose condition was worse than yours have been cured and are now in perfect health. Their enthusiastic and unsolicited testimonies show beyond the shadow of a doubt that is the most wonderfully effective remedy ever compounded. It relieves the most severe case in from 10 to 60 minutes; it effects a full cure in a short time. The most eminent nose and throat specialists in the world have given it their unqualified endorsement. In all cases of catarrh, colds, sore throat, asthma, hay fever and influenza it acts like magic. It is easy and pleasant to use. It never fails to do precisely what is claimed for it. In less than an hour it will prove its worth if you will but give it a chance. A prominent evangelist gives testimony:

Rev. Warren Bentley, writes:—"While in Newark, N. J., conducting religious services, I was troubled with catarrh and used Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. It gave me great relief and I have recommended it to many among whom I have labored." Hon. David Mills, Minister of Justice of Canada, has used this remedy and highly recommends it over his own signature. At all druggists.

Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart cures all cases of organic and sympathetic disease of the heart. Relieves in 30 minutes. Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills are at once a mild cathartic and an invigorator, system renovator and blood maker and purifier. 20c. for 40 doses. Dr. Agnew's Ointment relieves in a day and cures eczema, tetter and all skin diseases. Cures piles in a to 5 nights. 35c. 6

CANADIAN NEWS.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—It is reported that G. W. Gooderham has obtained control of the stock of the Temperance and General Life Assurance company, and that this company will shortly be amalgamated with the Manufacturers, of which Gooderham is president. Both are strong and prosperous companies.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—The condition of Lord Melgund, the young son of the governor-general, is reported somewhat improved this afternoon. The vice-regal party will proceed to Ottawa tomorrow, either in the morning or evening, just which has not been decided.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—Mr Sifton has returned from Quebec and will leave tonight for Toronto where he will attend the banquet to be tendered Premier Hardy tomorrow night.

Quebec, Nov. 14.—At the convention of the Liberals of the county of Lewis held yesterday at St. Romuald, Hon. Chas Langelier was chosen candidate for the provincial legislature to replace the late N. N. Olivier.

Stratford, Nov. 14.—The voiding of the election in South Perth will be appealed on behalf of Mr. Moscrip, the Liberal respondent. The appeal will turn entirely on the validity of certain ballots which were badly printed, the petitioners having failed to convict him or his agents of corrupt acts.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—J. S. Brierely, managing director, and J. F. Mackay, secretary-treasurer of the Herald, appeared in court this morning on a charge of criminal libel, preferred by Chief Hughes, of the police force, whom the paper accuses of wrong-doing in his department. The chief has taken several actions against this paper, but has never proceeded with them. Brierely and Mackay gave bail.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—The marriage of Collingwood Schrieber, deputy minister of railways, with Miss Gwynne, daughter of Mr. Justice Gwynne, of the supreme court, was celebrated at Grace church today. Mr. and Mrs. Schreiber left for New York this afternoon on their wedding trip. The ceremony was witnessed by a large assemblage, representative of the society of the capital.

Winnipeg, Nov 14.—Word has been received that Mr. La France of this city reached Dawson City with the drove of cattle and sheep which the took from here last spring. He only lost one beef animal on the way. The drove netted him 150,000 pounds of meat dressed and he disposed of the beef at 85 cents per pound and the mutton at $1. Mr. La France also had a large quantity of cured meats on which he realized a handsome profit.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—At Osgoode Hall this morning when the adjourned hearing of the East Lambton election, W. J. Pettypiece, responding, came up before Justices Osler and Ferguson, counsel for the Conservatives, announced that it had been decided not to bring back from Fort Francis, the Rev. A. W. Rae, the young Presbyterian clergyman of that place, who, according to the Conservatives, had his fare paid from Toronto to Sarnia at the election of the Liberal organizer. As this was the only charge on account of which the trial was adjourned, the petition was dismissed. The same judges formally dismissed the protests in the case of North Middlesex and West Middlesex, the respondent in each case being a Liberal, and Hon. Geo. W. Ross being the representative of West Middlesex. South Grey was also dismissed where the respondent is a Conservative.

Count Cassini's Statement.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Count Cassini, the ambassador of the czar in the city, has made an important declaration. He states that at no time during the Spanish war did any of the nations of Europe conceive the idea of intervention in favor of Spain. The count further added that up to the present time the Sagasta government had not invoked international help to restrain the demands of America regarding the Philippines, but no opinion was expressed as to the result if Spain had so appealed.

Among leading men here the Cassini interview is believed to be a knell to the hopes of Spain. There will be no intervention to save to her the Philippines. Moreover, the risk to Spain in continuing the war is too tremendous to be taken. One striking fact in Count Cassini's deliverance calls for particular attention. It is that Russia desires the friendship of America. The count spoke probably officially—with the special object of making it clear to Americans that Great Britain is not the only friend they have in Europe.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—W. H. Bowlby, Q. C., of this town, is said to have cleared $20,000 by selling out his stock in the Temperance and General Insurance company to agents of George Gooderham, who were acquiring a controlling interest for him, with a view, as it is believed to possible amalgamation with the Manufacturers.

London, Nov. 14.—Later news concerning the condition of Thomas Dickinson, the merchant injured by falling off a train on his way home from New York, indicates that he wil probably recover. His most serious injury is a broken leg, but he has a number of severe bruises.

DREYFUS IS DYING.

Madame Dreyfus Applies to President Faure for Permission to Communicate With Her Husband.

Paris, Nov. 11.—Madame Dreyfus, it is said, applied at the office of the colonial minister today to send her husband some warm clothing for his return home. Her request was refused on the ground that the government would do whatever was necessary. At the same time the authorities read to her a letter from her husband to the effect that having for five months addressed appeals for revision to General de Boisdeffre without getting any reply and being worried and exhausted by his useless appeals, he would write no more to his family or to anybody. He described himself as ill and dying and bequeathed "to the generosity of my country the care of rehabilitating my memory."

Madame Dreyfus then asked permission to telegraph her husband the decision of the court of cassation. This request also was refused. Then, through a friend, she appealed to President Faure, but with no better result. Her counsel will bring the matter before the court of cassation

London, Nov. 11.—The Morning Post's Paris correspondent says it has been decided to bring Dreyfus back from the Isle du Diable and confront him with the witnesses of his alleged confession.

A dispatch from Paris says the case of Lieut.-Colonel Picquart, who is confined in the Cherche Midi military prison on the charge of forgery, and using forged documents in connection with the Dreyfus case, will be decided on to-morrow. His unconditional release seems to be assured.

THE HOOLEY CASE.

Sir William Marriott Says Hooley's Statement Is an "Abominable Lie."

London, Nov. 14.—The examination in the bankruptcy proceedings of Mr. Ernest Terrah Hooley, the company promoter, was resumed this morning. Sir William Marriott took the stand and declared that Mr. Hooley's statement that he had paid the witness £1,000 for introducing him (Hooley) to the Carleton club, was a "pure fabrication and an abominable lie." Sir William added that he knew nothing at the time about Mr. Hooley's alleged donation of £10,000 to the Conservative party's funds, through the Marquis of Abergaveny, though Mr. Hooley told him afterwards he had given the marquis £10,000 for the "fighting funds" of the Conservative party, which, Sir William Marriott explained, had nothing to do with the Carleton club. The witness also said he had helped Mr. Hooley in political and financial matters, but always declined remuneration for his services. Later Sir William Marriott said that Mr. Hooley told him in December, 1896, that he was engaged with an American syndicate which was going to raise an enormous loan for Cuba and said that he, the witness, had been appointed counsel to the company's commission, which was to visit Cuba and his fee was to be £10,000, in view of which Mr. Hooley paid him £1,000 on account.

On cross examination, Sir William Marriott admitted he had received a check for £50,000 from Mr. Hooley, which he handed to the representatives of the Conservative party. Mr. Hooley believed that this would secure him a baronetcy at the jubilee, but he was informed he could not have it and the check was returned to him.

During Sir William Marriott's examination, Mr. Hooley made a scene and threatened to pitch the witness out of the box. While Sir George Lewis, Q.C., was cross examining Sir William the witness several times got angry and refused to answer questions put to him.

Mr. Hooley, on cross-examination, flatly contradicted the evidence of Sir Wm. Marriott. He reiterated his statement that he had promised and had paid to Sir William £1,000 for an introduction to the Carlton club. Sir William, Mr. Hooley added, told him that he did "all the dirty work" for the Conservative party. Sir William suggested the giving of £50,000 to Mr. Hooley for a baronetcy and he was to get £10,000 if Mr. Hooley was made a baronet.

Sophie Howard Dead.

Winnipeg, Nov. 14.—One of the notorious habitues of the police station, Sophia Howard, was found dead in bed yesterday morning in a shack back of the Vulcan Iron works. The owner of the place, "Scotty" Shewan was there at the time but failed to report the matter to the police until the evening. Detective Leech and the coroner visited the place and had the remains removed to Thompson's undertaking rooms. An investigation will probalby be made today. The deceased had been under the influence of liquor for several days and it is supposed that death resulted from alcoholic poisoning. The deceased was a half-breed.

New York, Nov. 14.—The fourteenth annual horse show opened at 9 o'clock this morning in Madison Square Garden. The damp weather was not conductive to enthusiasm and the attendance was not up to the average.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 14.—Dr. Campos Salles, president-elect of Brazil, will be installed in the presidental chair tomorrow.

"Any war scenes in that new play?" "Well, there's a village choir."

AN EPILEPTIC SUFFERER.

A FENLON FARMER TELLS OF HIS REMARKABLE CURE.

At Regular Intervals He Was Subject to Fits, and Doctors Told Him the Trouble Was Incurable—Now Free From the Malady.

From the Warden, Lindsay, Ont.

Mr. Robert McGee, of the 9th concession of Fenlon, Victoria county, says in speaking of his cure from this terrible malady:—"I am 35 years of age and live on the old homestead where I was born and have lived always since, and where my own little family were born. This part of Fenlon is known as McGee's Settlement, there are so many of that name living in the vicinity. Never in my life did I know what a day's sickness was until March, 1895, when without any known cause and without any warning I was stricken down with an epileptic fit. It came on in the night, causing great consternation in the household, as my wife, who never saw anything of the kind before, thought it was my end; as for myself I never felt nor knew anything that was going on about me. After coming out of the convulsion which they tell me usually lasted from fifteen to thirty minutes, I would fall into a heavy sleep from which I would awake with a dull, heavy feeling, and all the muscles of my body would be sore. This would pass away and in a day or two after the attack I would be able to attend to my farm work, but strange to say every four months after as regular as a clock I would be seized with a fit, which always came on in the night. Various doctors and specialists were consulted and I took several different medicines, but without effecting a cure. Several doctors said the disease was incurable. I read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the newspapers and was advised by friends who had experienced cures from other seemingly incurable ailments, to try them. In November, 1896, I commenced and kept on taking them regularly for a year. The dreaded period passed and passed again and again without a repetition of my trouble, and I felt that I was at last released from this terrible malady. I am now in the best of health, and I attribute my cure to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In conversation with Mrs. McGee she said that her husband's trouble was the cause of most seriously affecting her nerves and general health, as she was always living in dread, and could never enjoy a night's rest. The slightest noises would startle her, and if it had not been for the kindness of a neighbor who always came and stayed at the house over night, she believes she would have broken down altogether. She also is thankful for the great change that has been wrought, and is only too glad to let others with similar afflictions know that there is a remedy for this terrible disease.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the disease. They renew and build up the blood, and strengthen the nerves, thus driving disease from the system. Avoid imitations by insisting that every box you purchase is enclosed in a wrapper bearing the full trade mark, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. If your dealer does not keep them they will be sent post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

Criticising Aberdeen.

Montreal, Nov. 15.—The French newspapers all have editorial articles bidding Lord Minto welcome on behalf of the French-Canadians, whose loyalty to the British crown is again asserted. La Minerve has a long editorial upon Lord and Lady Aberdeen's stay in Canada, having nothing but praise for their personal actions; but La Minerve cannot forgive Lord Aberdeen for having refused to continue Sir Charles Tupper in office, or for having commuted the sentence of Shortis, the Valleyfield murderer. "It would not require many governors such as Aberdeen," says La Minerve, "to make us discontented with our colonial tie, and to bring us to the point where we would elect our own governor, either by popular vote or by the choice of the two chambers."

Thousands for Charity.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—The will of the late James Shields, who died recently, disposes of an estate valued at $56,878. The income of the estate goes to a sister of the deceased while she lives, and is then divided among different charities of the city. The Sick Children's hospital gets $5,000; the Home for Incurables, $2,000, and other institutions smaller sums. The balance goes to the general hospital for an emergency hospital, the main building to cost not less than $30,000. If the hospital is not built within a couple of years after the death of the sister of the deceased the residue of the estate will be divided among the various charitable institutions.

An Infant's Sudden Death.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—A five year old girl named Laura Gohiere, of 107 Beaudoin street, left alone in the house yesterday, accidentally set fire to her clothing and was burned to death. At the inquest Coroner McMahon spoke very strongly on the subject of mothers leaving children alone in that fashion. He said there should be legislation to punish them and make such carelessness a criminal offence. In this case, however, the poor woman was unacquainted with her neighbors and there was some excuse.

HUMOR

HOW IT STRUCK HIM.

Browning and His Bargain—A Tale With a Wee Moral to It.

"How do you like it, old man?" asked Browning. "Pretty clever, isn't it? Only cost me $4. Cheap at twice that, I thought." And Browning backed away that Tompkins might get a better view of his new duck suit with nice, sharp creases down the trousers, up the sleeves and across the back of his coat.

"It looks well," answered Tompkins, surveying his friend from head to foot. "Fits splendid too. First one I ever saw that fitted. Only cost $4, you say?"

"Yep, only $4."

"Believe I'll get one myself."

"Better do it. They won't last long. Greatest suits ever made." Browning was pleased at the thought of gaining a convert.

A little later in the day he met Evans, and speaking of the suit said: "It only cost $4. Thought it was a good investment, so I bought it." Evans liked it and said he was going around to try one on. Browning thought pretty well of himself.

When he ran across Cleaver after lunch, of course the conversation turned upon the suit. "Only cost $4," said Browning, "mere trifle, you know. Suit's worth it, though, don't you think?"

Cleaver did.

It was the same with Mitchell. "Only had to pay $4 for it, you know." And then Hudson agreed with all the others that it was worth that if it was worth a cent. In fact, nine times that day Browning said to one or more of his friends, "It only cost $4." It rained before he got home in the evening, and he had no umbrella. When he reached the house, the suit looked like the garment Jean Valjean wore in the sewers. It was a lumpy mass of sticky burlap and flapped around him like a muddy colored banner. When Browning had taken it off, he threw it over a chair, a wreck of former nattiness and beauty, and as he leaned back against the dresser and surveyed it, dangling, limp and crinkled there, he muttered, "And it cost $4."—Detroit Free Press.

Declared His Intentions.

Fond Mother—Has Signor Arturo, with whom you have been dancing all the evening, at last declared his intentions?

"Yes, mamma."

"Thank goodness! What did he say?"

"He declared he would never get married."—Roxbury Gazette.

A basement store in New York displays the sign to passersby: "Umbrella Hospital Doctor's Hours, 7 A. M. to 9 P. M. Fractures and Other Injuries Quickly Cured."

"Witness," said the attorney, "was it this man's habit to talk to himself when alone?" "Jest at this time," was the answer, "I don't recolleck ever bein' with him when he was aloon."

The smallest soldier in France is Louis Bernadot of Luret, who is only two feet four inches in height. He is a dwarf, with a slight mustache. When he presented himself to draw his number out of the conscription urn it was discovered that his head did not reach to the top of the table on which the urn was placed, so a gendarme held him up by the collar to enable him to put his hands in the urn.

England carries about 38 per cent. of the sea-borne merchandise of the world.

CONSUMPTION.

What a Well-Known Medical Journal Says About This King of Disease.

"This is essentially an age of scientific progress. Science and invention go hand in hand. Thanks to a distinguished chemist, consumption is robbed of its terrors, deprived of its destructiveness, and this insidious disease can first be relieved and then cured. But to accomplish a cure that is final and effective there must be constant persistency in treatment and right living. The sufferer must take the right medical relief, rightly administered. By the labor, skill and research of an eminent chemist, T. A. Slocum, consumption can be both relieved and cured."—Medical Tribune.

Three free sample bottles of the Slocum cure will be sent to any sufferer from consumption, lung or throat troubles or general debility, if name, address and express office are sent to The T. A. Slocum Chemical Co., Limited, King street west, Toronto, Ont. This is a genuine offer, and if the reader is—or knows a friend who is—a sufferer, send at once for the free samples and mention this paper.

BRITISH PUBLIC OPINION

IN LONDON ENDORSES THE U. S. POLICY.

The United States Encouraged to Retain Possession of the Philippines —A For orn Hope.

London, Nov. 13.—During the past week the United States has occupied the attention of Europe to a greater degree than at any other time since the battles of Santiago. The entry of the American Republic into the arena of eastern colonization has attracted widespread and varied attention and never before have the issues of an American election been so generally and eagerly discussed and so intelligently commented upon. The supposed endorsement of the so-called expansion policy by the electors of the United States has commanded a chorus of approval in Great Britain, while the journalistic spokesmen in France and Germany, exhibit an equal unanimity of disapproval. On the eve of the election the Marquis of Salisbury threw the chancelleries of Europe, a portentously ambiguous phrase which they have not yet succeeded in satisfactorily dissecting. Then came Emperor William's change of course toward the Spanish shores which Europeans are quick to discover, presents an exhibition of pro-Spanish sympathy. The Marquis of Salisbury remains as loyal a devotee to the old style of diplomacy which employs words to confuse meanings that his despatches frequently inspires as discordant interpretations as there are interpreters. But there are few who cavil in support of any construction of his latest declaration regarding a warning or unfriendliness to the United States. On the contrary all signs point to a unanimous welcome of the United States' entrance upon the role of a Philippine landlord from the British government and people, though accompanied by the assumption which the London Times this morning emphasizes, that "our unity of interests in that quarter of the globe depends upon the maintenance of the policy of the open-door." The United States attitude towards the Philippine Islands is also certainly welcomed by the British companies engaged in developing the islands. These companies, in anticipation of a stable, honest government, are already taking steps to enlarge their enterprises. This is notably the case with the Manila Railroad company, controlled by English capitalists, which is projecting an extension of its lines. Outside of all this, it is scarcely improbable that the Marquis of Salisbury would publicly antagonise the widespread sentiment of his countrymen that British and United States interests go hand in hand, and the correspondent of the Associated Press has good authority for asserting that he did not intend to. Moreover, the correspondent learns that communications or conversations between English and United States diplomats have been engaged recently, in which a recognition of this identity of interests was expressed. Though, so far as can be learned, the discussions did not go to the length of pledges of help or plans for concert of action in any contingency.

A FORLORN HOPE.

While the Spaniards are unquestionably hugging the hope of finding a friend and protector in Emperor William of Germany, the London diplomats accept his majesty's disclaimers, urging that the whole trend of the British and German policies is converging, particularly since the friendly apportionment of the spheres of influence in Africa, and that the emperor, believing his interests lie in the Anglo-American rather than in the Franco-Russian camp, will not show any disposition to duplicate his President Kruger telegram.

THE NAVAL PREPARATIONS.

If the Marquis of Salisbury's speech made clear any fact, it was that Great Britain does not intend to diminish her armaments, regardless of the czar's proposals in that direction. The energetic prosecution of the work of putting the British navy on a war footing after the Fashoda incident is closed inspires speculation, some construing it as foreboding war over the Philippine Islands, and others linking it with the Chinese problem, and the presence of 40,000 Russians at Port Arthur, who might conceivably be marched to Pekin for the protection of Russian interests. Others, however, conclude that the British admiralty is utilizing the opportunity for manoeuvres, for which parliament, under calmer conditions, would not authorize the expenditures.

Dreyfus to Be Brought Back.

Paris, Nov. 10.—Le Figaro says that at the instance of the court of cassaron another seizure of papers has been made in the house of a person who had relations with Major Esterhazy, and many letters belonging to Esterhazy have been handed to the court.

London, Nov. 11.—The Paris correspondent of the Morning Post says: "It has been decided to bring Dreyfus back to Paris."

THE U. S. ELECTIONS.

MORE COMPLETE FIGURES OF TUESDAY'S RESULT.

Republicans Will Have a Majority in the Senate and House—Republicans Elect 52 Senators.

Washington, Nov. 9.—The election returns establish with certainty that the United States senate will have a Republican majority after March 4 next. The analysis of the party changes shows the Republicans gain seven seats from the Democrats in California, Delaware, Indiana, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, and Wisconsin, and one from the Populists in Nebraska. They may lose one, (Washington), which is in doubt, and gain one in West Virginia, which is also in doubt.

The political divisions of the senate after March 4 will be:

Republicans, 52.
Democrats, 27.
Populists, 5.
Silver Republicans, 4.
In doubt, 2.

Washington, Nov. 9.—A list of congressmen elected, compiled from returns to the Associated Press up to 11 o'clock, shows that the Republicans have elected 180 members while the Democrats, Silver Republicans, Fusionists and all others have elected 165 members. There are twelve doubtful districts yet to be heard from.

MINNESOTA.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—The latest reports indicate that the Republican majority in North Dakota on the state ticket will exceed 7,000.

MURDERS IN TEXAS.

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 9. — Yesterday was a bloody election day in Texas. At Hubbard, Stevens county, Rosare McCarthy, Joseph Ramby and Jefferson Squires were killed and J. F. MacCartery and Riley Squires probably mortally wounded in an election quarrel. At Steuben, in Hopkins county, R. E. Sutton and George Young were party to the killing of Sutton, who had murdered Young's brother. At Aubrey, Denton county, Deputy Sheriff B. Taylor was shot through the neck by Lee Webb and dangerously wounded. He shot Webb through the leg. At Sheffield, in Trinity county, J. W. Ashefield was killed and his father probably fatally wounded by persons whose names have not been learned. Many more affrays occurred in the various parts of the state as the result of election differences.

Beached in Falcon Narrows.

Rat Portage, Nov. 10.—The steamer Chieftain has just arrived from Rainy River with tidings of an accident to the steamer Edna Brydges on her last trip down. She encountered thick ice in Falcoln Narrows, which wore a hole in her bow. She immediately began to fill with water, and was beached just in time to save her from sinking. Pumps and barges have gone to her rescue, and it is expected she will be brought in before the lake freezes up. The Keenora left to-night on her last trip with sixty passengers and one hundred tons of freight.

NORTH DAKOTA.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—Later returns place the majority for the Republicans state ticket in North Dakota at 4,800. The legislature stands 74 Republicans out of 93, with six in doubt.

NEBRASKA'S TURN OVER.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 9.—Belated returns today continue to indicate that Nebraska has turned a political summersault and landed in the Republican column. Three hundred and seventeen precincts outside of Lincoln and Omaha gave Jayward, Republican, for governor 3,000 plurality. If this gain is maintained Hayward will carry the state by over 4,000.

Pater Familias (to his hopeful)—John, if you've got any intention of marrying that heiress, I wish you would hurry up. Just figure out the interest you are losing by this delay.
